

George Lucas, Abraham Lincoln, Pope John Paul II – these people have changed the world in their own way. What if they had been aborted, killed before they were even born? The world would be missing out on a cool moviemaker, a great president, and an awesome pope. Just think, the world is missing out on great scientists, doctors, zookeepers, police officers, inventors, business people, store owners, mechanics, priests, and nuns all because of abortion.

We will be protected from abortion if we practice the virtue of chastity and refrain from having sex until we are married. People who practice chastity won't need abortion, because they won't have an "unwanted pregnancy." We will then be blessed with true health, hope and happiness.

It is not healthy to have sex before you are married, because you could: commit adultery, be depressed, not having a good marriage, and marry for the wrong reasons. If you weren't chaste, you would be more likely to divorce someday.

If we wait to have sex until after we get married, we will be better able to take care of our children because we will have a good place for them to grow up in. We will be happier and able to love more because we won't feel guilty that we killed our kids. You can be happier with your daughter or son, knowing that you did the right thing.

We will be truly holy if we live a chaste life because we will not sin by killing another living person. We will also be holy because we do what the Catholic Church believes in. The Holy Spirit helps the Church to tell the truth that God wants what is best for all His people. The Church believes in being chaste and refraining from abortion, so we should too.
